Raw Deal for US Writers

Early in Drummer's history I had submitted a couple of pieces of fiction for consideration along with a cover letter saying how much I admired the publication and how much I would like to have my work included in it.

Many years later, after several publications elsewhere, I again submitted stories to Drummer. John Rowberry published my "City Boy-Country Boy" in Drummer #50 in 1981. But when I complained about the delay in payment he sent back the two other stories he had also accepted. These were published in Honcho in 1982. For each of these three stories I was paid $100.

This is also the going rate that, as publisher, I paid for all fiction submissions, and most other contributions, during my tenure at Drummer.

Interestingly it is also the amount I have been offered for the piece I recently contributed to an issue of Drummer, and the amount I have been promised for each of several other submissions I have made to various other publishers in the past few months.

It was not until I began to work on the article for Drummer that I realized that, in spite of drastic inflation, great increases in paper costs, printing costs, postage and other distribution costs, AND in cover and subscription prices, writers and other contributors are still receiving exactly the same payments they were nearly 15 years ago.

This is not unique to Desmodus, it is the same with all other similar publishers. Even to someone who was a publisher, and is fully cognizant with the economics of the situation, this does not seem right!

I have come full circle. I began in this business as a writer, looking for someone to publish my work. I was delighted when, in 1973, Larry Townsend first accepted fiction by Fledermaus into one of his Treasury of SM volumes. And, like most other such writers, I have been happy to be published by anyone who would. Now I would be happy to have my contributions recognized for their worth.

I hope that all publishers will reexamine their contributor payment schedules.

Anthony F. DeBlase, Portland, OR
Ed. As a writer and an editor I, like you, am often on both ends of the pen. As a former member of the National Writers Union and a freelance writer, I whole-heartedly agree with you that writers in the United States are not paid their worth. As the editor of International Drummer I am working with International Drummer, a publication that happens to agree with you, to increase all artist's pay. Thanks for keeping this issue on our agenda.

Pining for Perverts in PA

I wish to take this opportunity to not only thank you and your staff for Drummer but also to say a special thanks for Drummer #185. Up until now I was satisfied with being a leather freak interested in SM, bondage, uniforms, boots, cigars and just about anything else associated with leather. However Drummer #185 has taken me into an additional interest - RUBBER! I can't get enough of it. The cover alone has me a wishin' and a dreamin'. So far I've made contact with several suppliers noted in the article and have received the molded rubber hood. The smell alone drives me crazy. Living in the "Lehigh Valley" of Pennsylvania has made it very difficult to find partners who share my interests and I'm sure adding rubber to my list won't make it any easier, so please keep up the great work. As far as sex is concerned, I live for each and every issue of Drummer. It keeps me in touch with the world.

By the way, if any of those guys featured in Drummer #185 are ever in the Lehigh Valley please give them my name and phone number! I'm available! I could use all the help I can get.

D.S., Emmaus, PA
Ed. Glad we could help out your sex life. I took you at your word and forwarded your name, phone - and vital statistics on to Mr. Vulcan leather. I am sure he'll be more than happy to satisfy your new hunger.

Thumbs Up for Tom

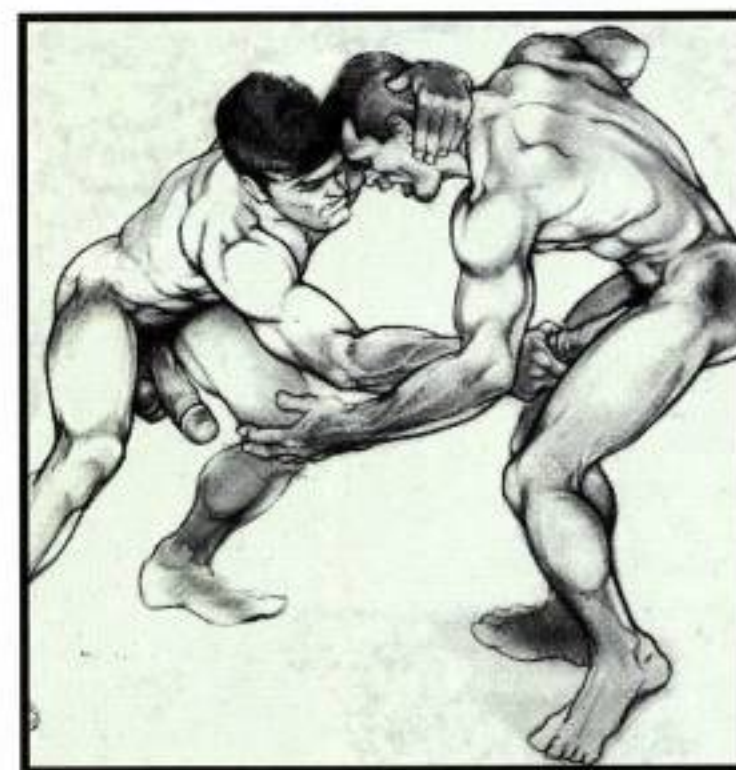

Great article in Drummer #183 on the history and purpose of the Tom of Finland Foundation.

BM, Kalamazoo, MI

Foundation's Dispatch newsletter. It is not only filled with the most up-to-date information on existing and emerging erotic artists but also contains endless images of said artists. Very hot stuff! For more information contact: The Tom of Finland Foundation, PO Box 26658, Los Angeles, CA 90026.

Drummer! Put Up Your Dukes

I enjoy Drummer very much and have seen past stories or articles on wrestling but have you even done any articles on gay men boxing? For me seeing a man wearing black leather boxing gloves, black mouthpiece and boxing trunks ready to do battle is hot, hot, hot. The sting of his glove against my skin, the moan he makes when I hit his gut, the expression on his face after getting hit hard, getting up after being knocked down and continuing to fight your best is a real man. I would like to hear more about gay men and boxing.

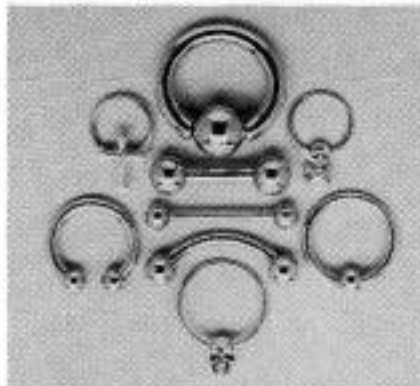

Big Bad Bob, Binghamton, NY
Ed. Sounds good to me. Why don't you write more about your experiences and, if the piece is as hot as some sections of your letter, I'll dig up an illustrator and run your work. You seem to have quite a knack for words. I also just purchased a hot story that's got a great fisticuffs in it - keep your eyes peeled in future issues. And, although I couldn't find any images of boxing laying around the office, I dug up some old Kick Boxing images by Matt, some of which ran in earlier issues of International Drummer (Nos. 55 and 59). Enjoy. ■

ASYLUM

ASYLUM features nine of San Francisco's sleaziest, raunchiest, most politically incorrect pigs, led by pumpmaster Dixon Duffy and Richard Derreck, who sports one of the fattest pricks we've ever seen. His humongous joystick gets rammed down some hungry mouths and shoved up a very wicked butthole in a sling.

Master Dixon rims and fucks his hunky furry toy—then shoves three enormous dildoes (one of them ingeniously attached to his ball restraints) up his gaping hole, and finishes up with some expert FF.

A blindfolded blond bottompig winces as his torso is covered with clothespins, groans in ecstasy as hot black candle wax follows, and finally is driven mad on one of the monster dildoes.

The pressure gets turned up as Dixon and his toy and Derreck and a shaved, pierced brute bring on the pumps, and cockheads strain to meet in a hot buddy pump sequence.

TRUTHS & DARES: FUCKED EVERY WHICH WAY

WE'VE ALL SEEN DIFFERENT TYPES OF VIDEOS WITH DIFFERENT LEVELS OF QUALITY

Painful Reminders

BY DYRK

I try not to let my own personal preferences taint my reviews of the books and videos submitted to me. But I try to give readers some valuable information and I am committed to continuing this information exchange. So without further ado, let me warn you about a couple of videos that were brought to my attention.

The videos Atlanta Knights and Force Recon Part I produced by Chip Weichelt and Fleetwood Productions are really nothing more than low-budget karate type films.

The storyline reads like a day in the life of some straight macho motorcycle cops. Apparently the cops and the S.W.A.T. team are real, but who cares. There is one short scene where martial arts master David Munroe and his big-haired girlfriend climb into the shower together to clean up for a date that never happens because of all the non-stop action.

If you have a die-hard uniform fetish, be my guest and let me know what you think, but my recommendation is to rent a Chuck Norris or Steven Segall movie and get your money's worth.

Games People Play

On a completely different note, Atlas! Productions has my vote of approval for their Truths & Dares starring Cougar Cash, Clark Kent, James Dane, Harry Crews, Alvin Eros, Valente Valentino and Mikos.

In the first scene Kent beckons Valentino to slide down a firehouse pole where a plump, black dildo waits. After some fun tantalizing and build-up, the landing happens without a hitch and the roles are soon reversed with Valentino's cock plowing Kent's backside.

Then we see Cash, Kent, Dane and Mikos playing their own special version of truth or dare which starts with Dane telling them about a steamy 3-way shower scene that made me wet as they fucked each other every which way and then some. The telling is augmented by a re-enactment for the viewers' pleasure.

Cash tells his tale next about losing control in a sex club. Eros fucks Cash's ass while Mikos fucks his face. They put Cash in a cage and give it to him through the bars.

Finally they have a four-way in the jacuzzi which looks like plenty of fun. Overall I would say it's got something for just about anyone. Not too vanilla, nor too rough, very sexual and filled with a variety of nice looking men.

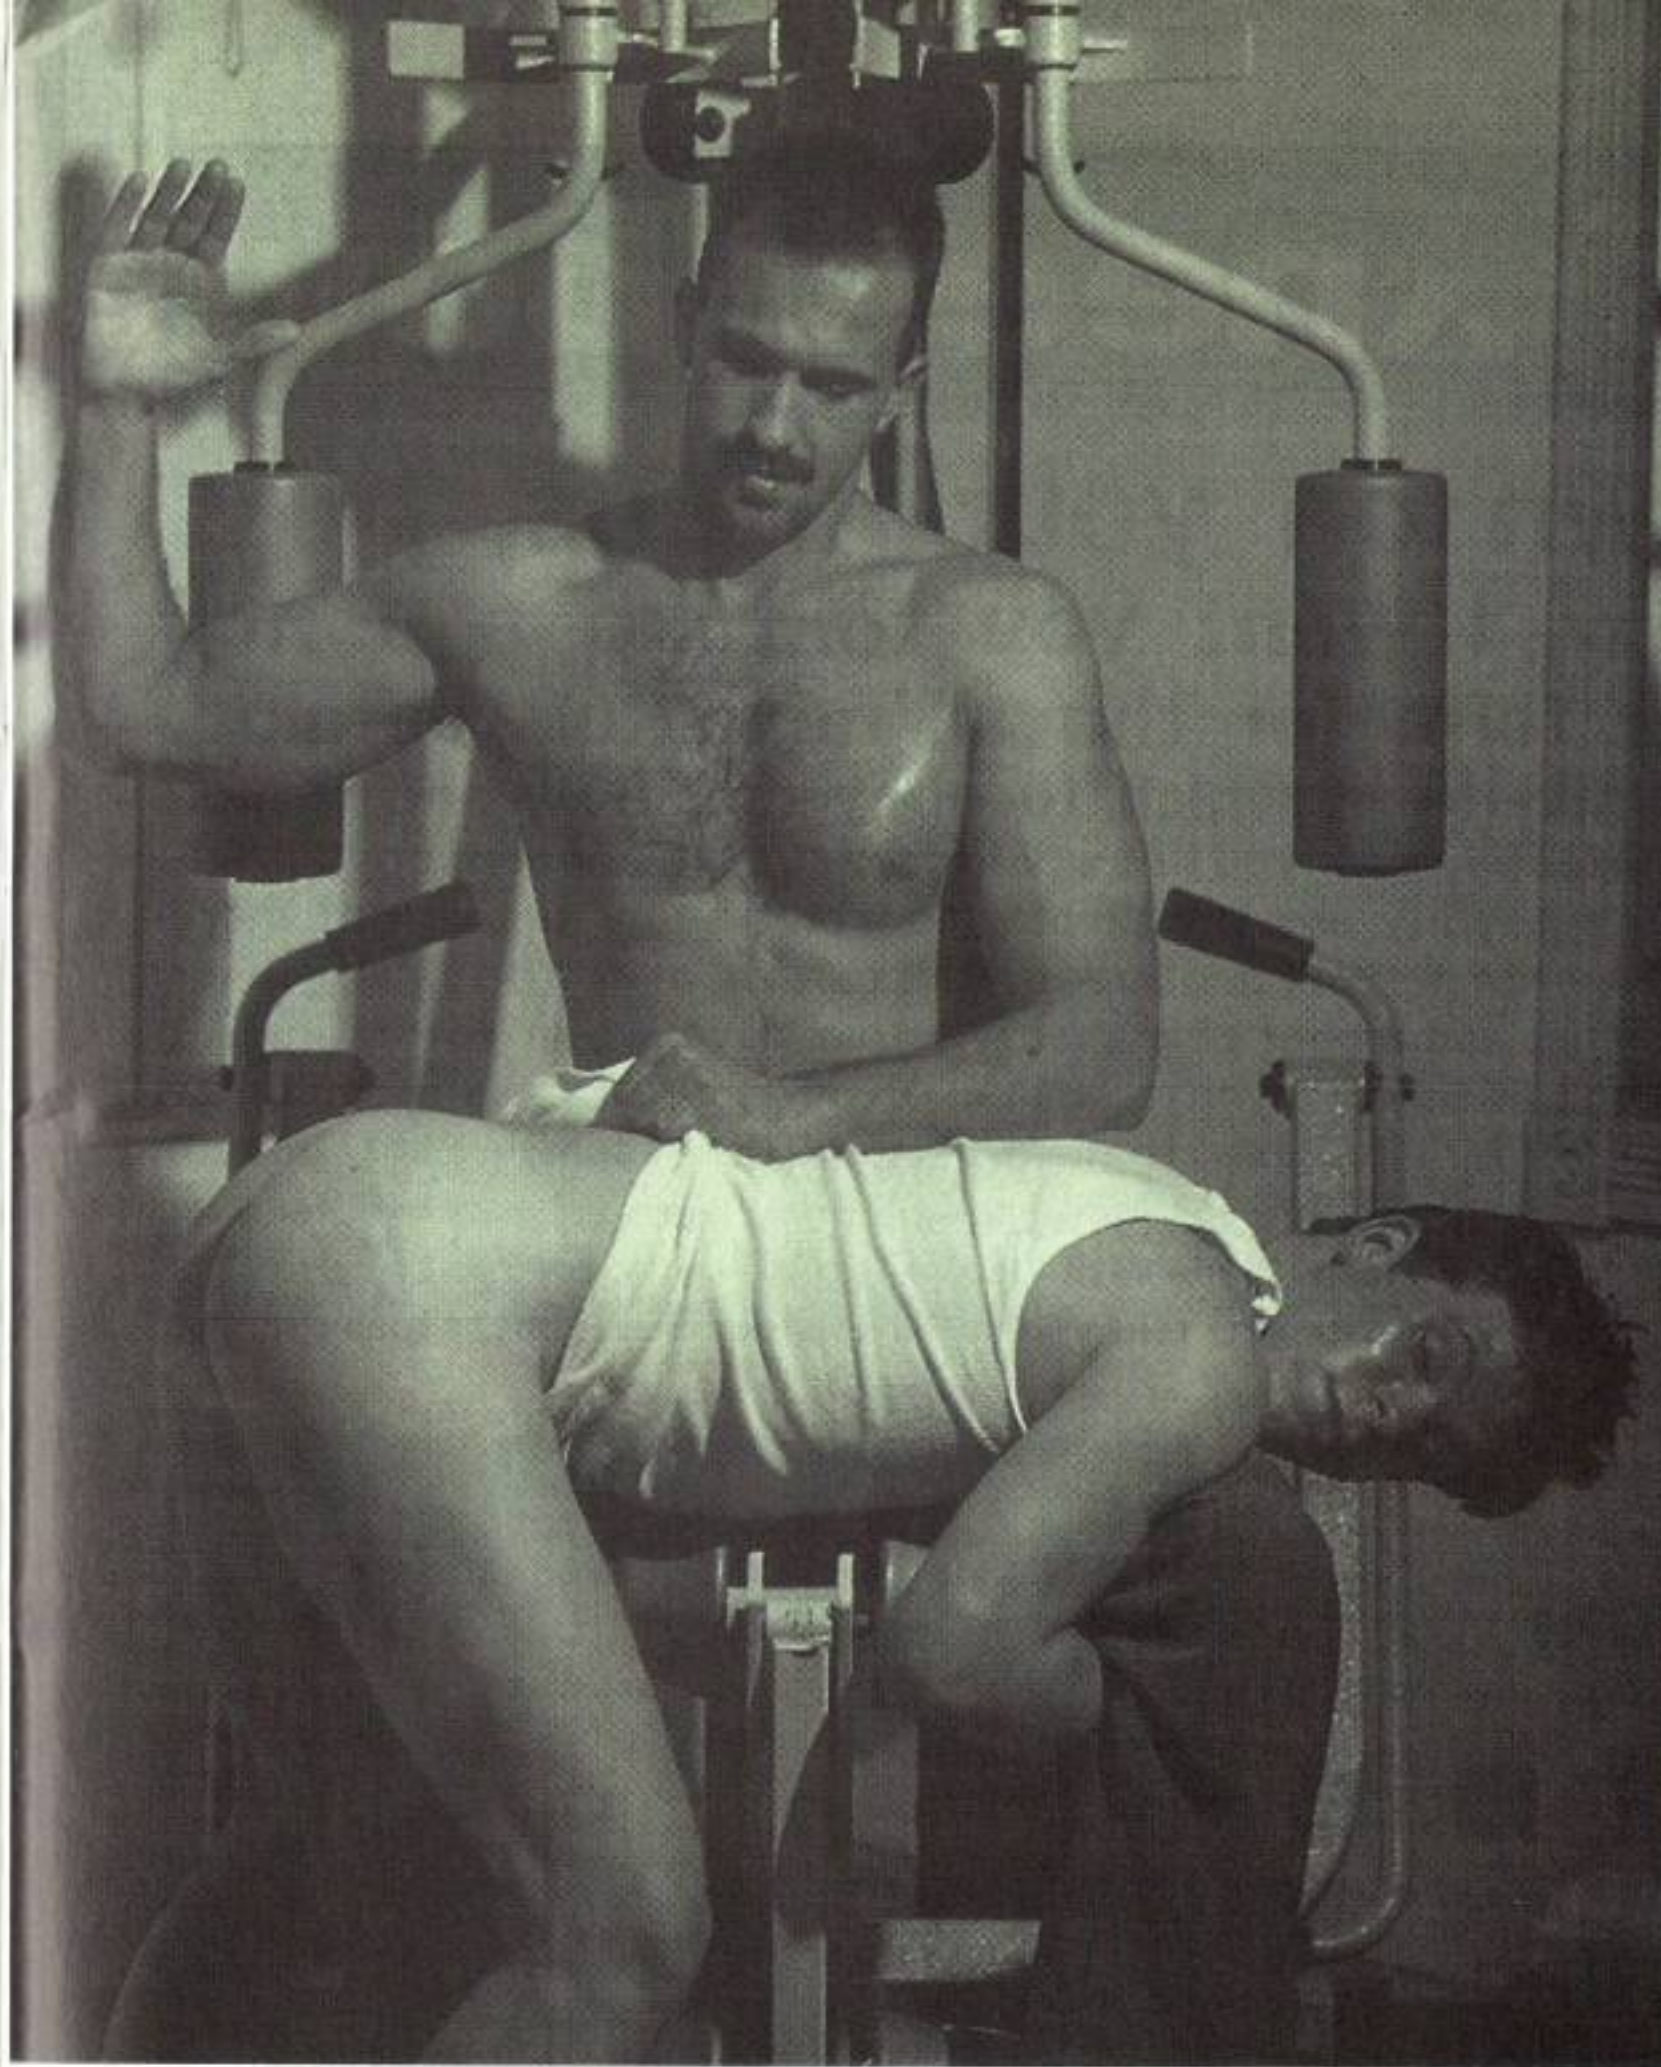

Longing For Discipline

Not too sexual but very kinky, John Summers and Jet Set Productions presents Spare The Rod.

Drill sergeant Alex Austin (a former U.S. Marine and Seal in real life) has his own ideas on how to condition a recruit and it's not by the book. His pussy recruit not only gets his butt beaten raw, but Austin goes on to give him a verbal dress-down that made me shudder.

In the next scenario, a bossy bottom pushes all the right buttons in order to get what he wants — he wants his workout partner to take control and punish his beautiful hard ass. The gym is just the place you'd expect to hear the phrase "no pain, no gain" as this pushy bad boy begs for more.

In the final segment, a priest catches one of his teenage altar boys hanging out with the wrong crowd and smoking. So the father takes his bad boy to his private chambers and beats him into submission, playing on the will of God, the will of man and the will of a bottom who wants to make it right – no matter how much it hurts. There's lots of guilt, shame and scripture in this one.

Again there's no sex, but the men and boys are hot and hunky, while the spanking certainly doesn't Spare The Rod.

Train This

John Stevens does it again with Masters At The Boots, a Kiss-Off video starring Randy, Paulo, Oliver, Eddie, Will and Dirty Richard. Slave training takes on a whole new meaning when a couple of novices decide to learn a little more about servitude.

It starts with a van drive to the Boots in Antwerp, Belgium, where the neophytes are led up several flights of stairs. After being ordered to strip to their jockstraps, there is plenty of whacking that makes their hooded heads spin in submissive bliss. No scene would be complete without even more verbal abuse and boot licking.

In another part of the Boots, a slave trainee is strapped to a rack and smacked and whacked until he is taken down to suck on master's cock. A new master comes along and takes over the training which includes nipple clamps and weights hanging from the slave's P.A. The slave is then hung upside down and toyed with down under.

Meanwhile, another slave's genitals are beaten before alligator clips are attached to his scrotum. In the final scene, the roles of master and slave melt away as everyone helps everyone else squirt a load.

Also from John Stevens' Close Up Productions is New York Pick-Up by Donnie Russo. It seems that the best place to pick up an aspiring young porno star is the docks on a warm sunny day. What he gets invited to do is little short of scandalous.

Storm and his friend Davon Wells take Robby Boxer home to show him the ropes (figuratively speaking) of a porno audition. At home Storm acts as director, telling Robby to slowly strip and then to suck on Davon's big cock. Finally a butt plug and dildo are used to open Robby up for the assault from Storm's raging rocket.

On his way home, a big biker daddy bear (Paul Richards) gives Robby the eye as does hunky construction worker Joe Romero. What this means is a another hot three-way where Robby takes beautiful cocks in every hole. Very nice indeed.

Born To Be Mild

Mild to some is wild to others. I always feel it is important to let people decide for themselves. In Catalina Video's

On your knees, boy!

I said, "Get down on your knees, boy!"
CONGRATULATIONS, DRUMMER, ON 20 YEARS. KEEP IT CUMMING!
Now, boy, I want you to take a pencil and fill out this order form for the all new RoB catalog.
I'm going to give you one minute in which to obey me, boy, and if you haven't filled out this order form perfectly, then you know what's going to happen, boy? Well, for starters I'm going to give your pussyboy ass a wallop it won't soon forget. But more importantly, you're never gonna receive the newest and largest RoB catalog ever. The catalog that's bursting with the best selection of leather and rubber gear that any true slave would get an instant hardon over. So you see, boy, if you don't fill this out, you're just never gonna get to suck on that new gag your Master was going to order to fill that pretty little scumsucking mouth of yours. You'll also never get a chance to order those new leather chaps that you were going to get for your Master, and that means you'll never be able to clean them with your tongue like a good little groveling slaveboy should. So, boy, why the fuck aren't you writing? I told you to fill this out NOW, boy! I mean it, you little shit. You've got only 30 more seconds. Do it

Dixon as they get their rocks off. Other stars are Max Stone, Troy Steele, Marc Saber, Todd Mitchell, Jay Mitchell, Jay North, Ryan Mancini and Donnie Russo (this cameo appearance by Russo is the best I've seen him in – it doesn't have a thing to do with the way hot stud he has servicing his turgid cock).

Hard As A Rock

Falcon has finally gotten it right. The readers of International Drummer magazine unanimously agree that Workin' Stiff is a sure fire hit that will make your dick hard as a rock.

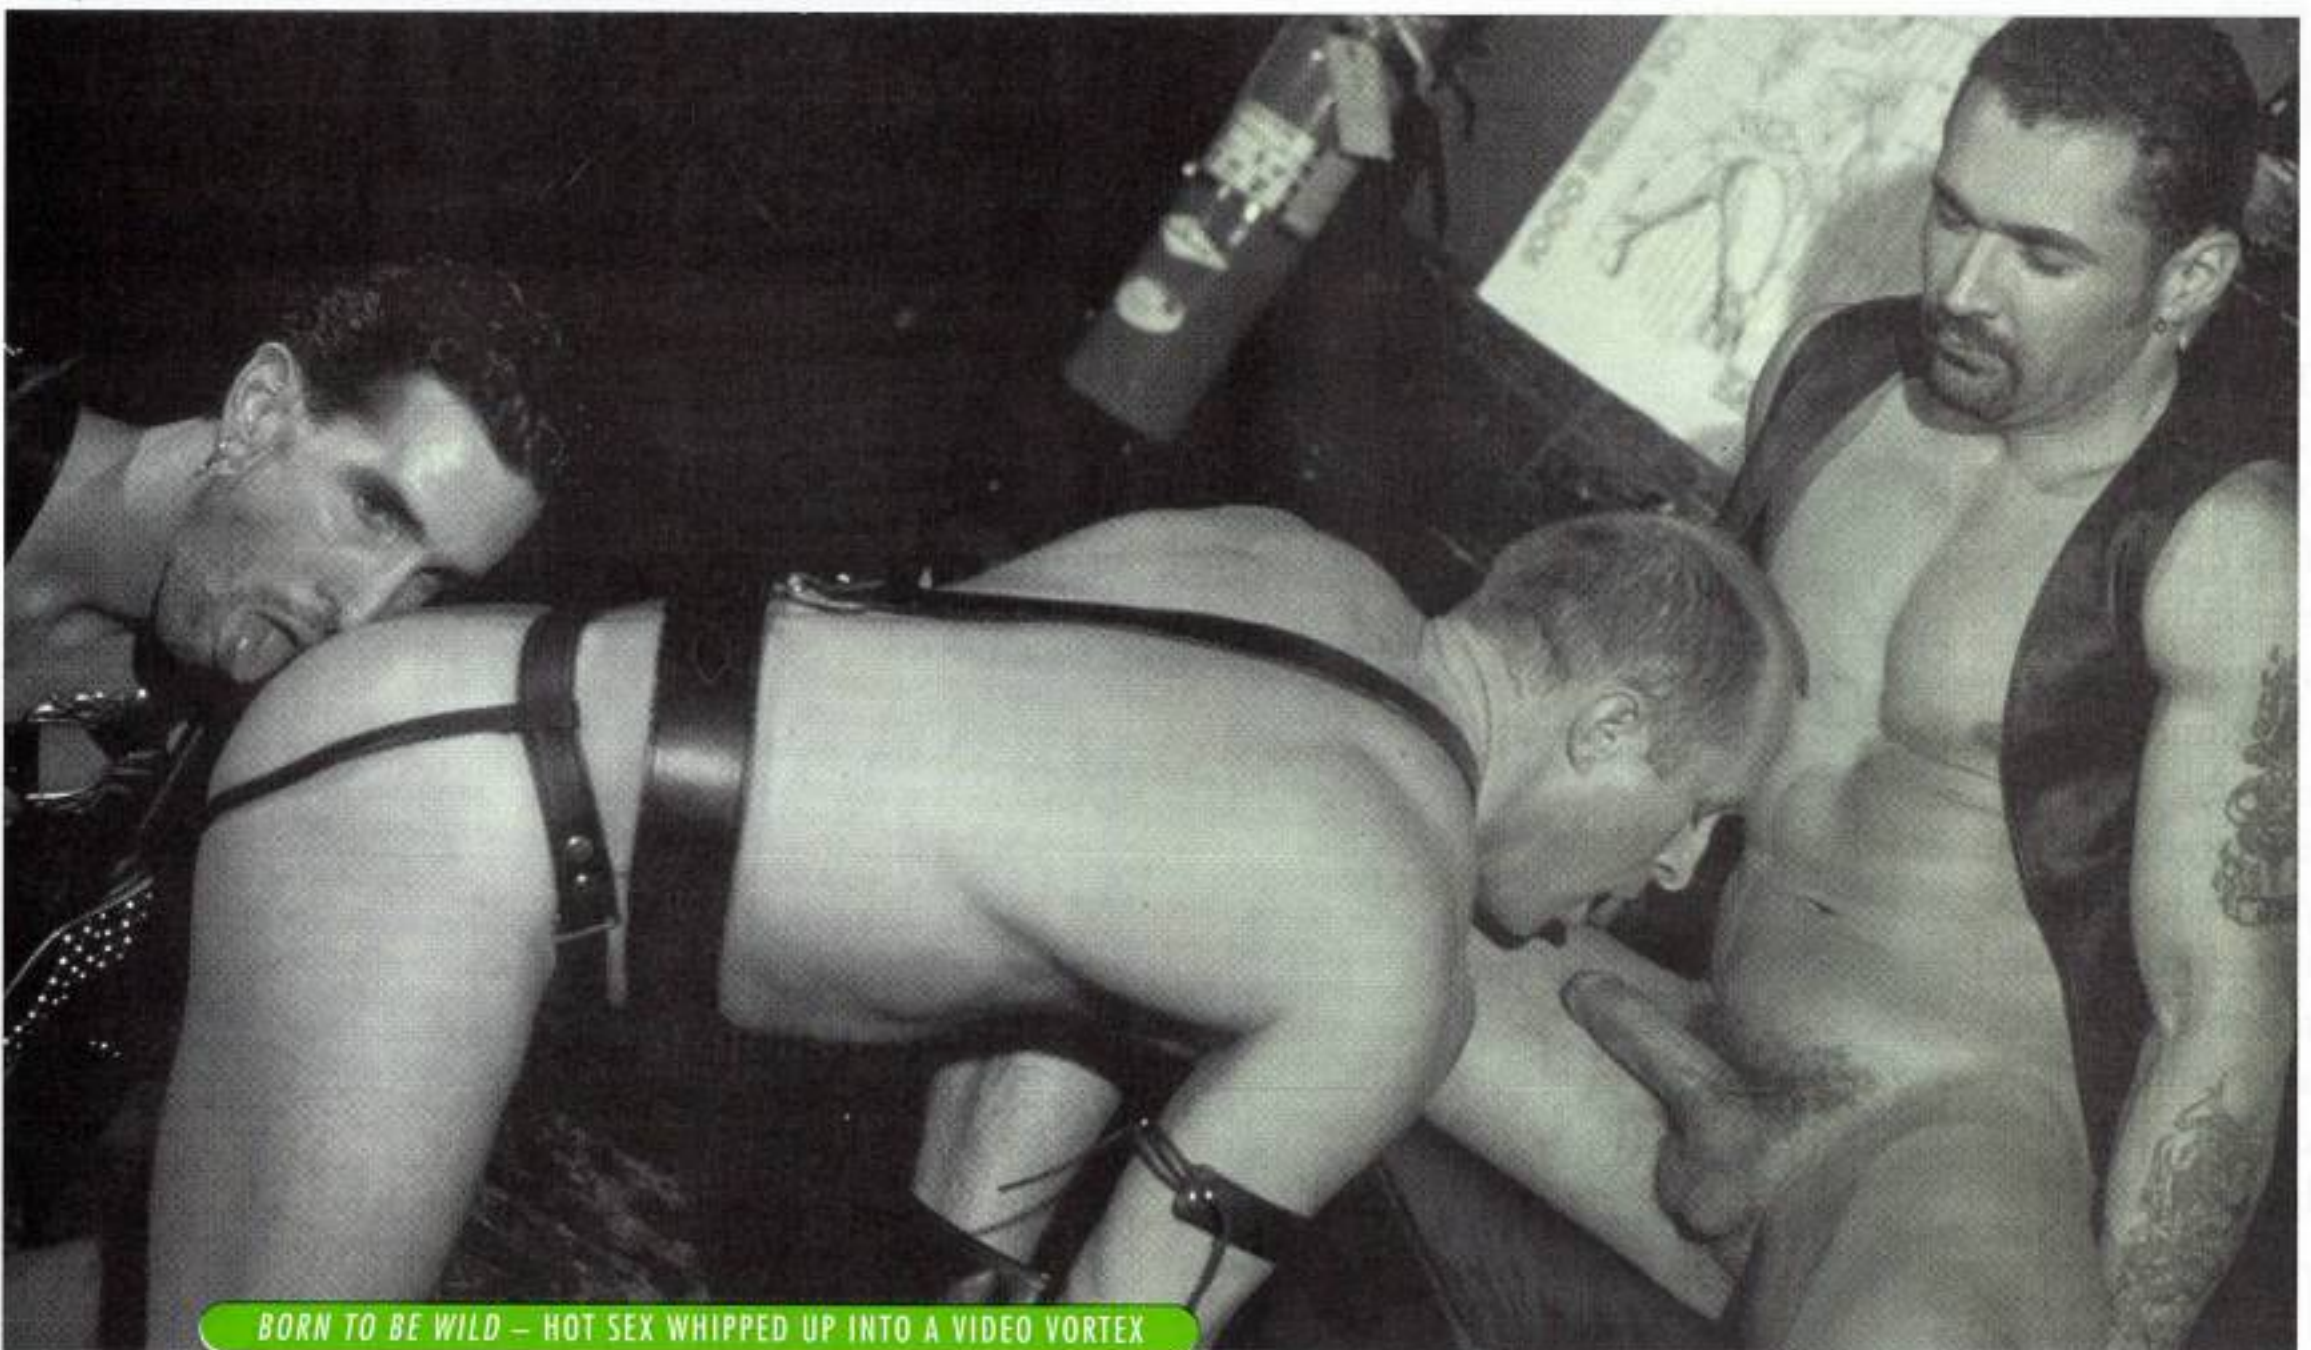

It starts out like any other Falcon video with Jake Andrews getting fucked by his boyfriend. But then it deviates from the norm and shows its ingenuity. Wolff is an out-of-towner in San Francisco who is looking for something sexy to wear as he shops at Drummer's retail space RoB Gallery. What he finds is Ken Adams, a very helpful and well hung clerk who not only fits Wolff's leather codpiece but a big black dildo and his own thick dick down Wolff's throat and tasty looking Born To Be Wild, director Josh Eliot weaves a tale of sexual debauchery that centers around the famed sex club The Vortex in Los Angeles.

There's not much to the storyline or the dialogue, but the men are nice and nasty and like their sex as much as the next horn dog. Glory holes, chained link walls and lots of leather work with the tattoos, piercings and hard cocks to make this video well worth the time and energy to watch and whack off.

Born To Be Wild stars hot John Sexton, the sex employee who uses the security cameras to spy on hunky guests Joe Romero and "Big" Peter

The Zen of Fisting

What do you get when you cross sexual spiritualists with frustrated documentarians? You get Joseph A. Kramer's Handball Loving by Alamo Square Press. Bert Herrman and Carl Hack show us how they fist fuck as a narrator talks about tantric love and sexual adepts achieving states of bliss through the love and trust that occurs with handballing.

This is a basic, straightforward approach to learning about the fine art of fisting and the spiritual consequences to letting someone shove his arm (or arms as the case may be) up your ass. The music and videography lend a since of esoteric panache to the whole piece. The producers of the Discovery Channel and National Geographic Explorer better watch out!

Tied Up & Down

Reputed to be the largest distributor of gay bondage videos, Masta Entertainment has graduated into the full-fledged production arena with its first solo video, Bondage & Discipline.

It stars Zeus' boy of the year Peter Bishop and smart-mouthed Mark Kent who get caught in a compromising situation and are disciplined in a series of bondage positions and punishments. Giving the orders, tying the knots and disciplining these two boys is leather-clad John Payne. The boys are bad in pooper.

In another scene we meet three hot numbers who give butt play a whole new meaning to a Falcon devotee. Then there is the next three way which features Andrew Cole as a heavy handed top who plugs a couple of bottoms' bottoms. And plug them he does with giant dildos and punching fists.

Next we see a cute boot black polish more than a pair of boots in the famed back room at the Jackhammer bar. Brad Stone's sex knob gets a spit shine just prior to pounding the boot black's hole through the bars of a cast-iron cage.

Toward the end of this truly interesting and fun video, we see Jake Andrews again this time as a monitor in a sex club who gets caught sucking off one of the big-dicked patrons and gets fired. Other stars include Chad Donovan, Cody Foster, Hunter Scott, Anthony Moore, Alex Kincaid, Jarod Clark and Bryce Colby.

TATTOOS, PIERCINGS, & HARD COCKS - NASTY & WILD

their insubordination and the top adorable in his mastery of bondage.

Like many videos in this genre, Bondage & Discipline has no anal penetration as it allows for wider distribution. But don't let that deter you from getting what you need from a good leather straight jacket and three hot studs. ■

Piss Scene Safety

BY NORMAN GREENSTEIN, M.D.

*Watersports is one of the more exotic and forbidden areas of SM play.
Piss is warm, wet and intimate...*

...but also a smelly waste product we have been taught to regard disdainfully.

Piss play carries an element of the forbidden, a legacy from childhood. A man who showers another man with his urine is sharing a secret, forbidden part of himself while also dominating the piss bottom in a way that is sexy and raunchy. As far as risk goes, piss play is safer than fucking, though not completely risk free. Toilet scenes, in which piss is ingested, are riskier than golden showers. So what technically is urine? It's a solution of water and waste products the kidneys filter out of the blood. It may also contain some infectious particles and various toxins, drugs, etc. When someone drinks piss (even his own) the kidneys must re-excrete the piss. Drinking small amounts of urine should not put a strain on healthy kidneys, although it might annoy them. Accompanying the piss with at least an equal volume of water will make the kidneys much less annoyed. Drinking piss from someone who drinks lots of liquid and makes dilute urine is easier on the kidneys than drinking concentrated urine. A warning to gout sufferers: piss contains a good deal of uric acid which people with gout already have trouble expelling, ingesting even more uric acid is not advisable.

Drugs that enter the body are expelled either through feces or urine.

Many drugs that are eliminated through urine are altered by the liver in a way that makes them inactive. Some drugs, however, pass through the kidneys in either their original form, or become more active than when ingested. How can you tell what effect residual drugs present in urine might have on a bottom who drinks piss? You may wish to ask a doctor, other health care provider, or pharmacist. Alternatively, you may wish to refer to one of several books available which list the "route of excretion" of most medications. One good reference is the Physician's Desk Reference (PDR). The section entitled

"pharmacokinetics" lists whether each drug is excreted through urine or feces and whether or not it remains active after being excreted.

Viruses and bacteria can be present in urine without being aware of it. For example, if pissed on by herpes-containing urine, the virus can penetrate the skin through a small wound, causing skin lesions called herpes gladiatorum, sores which may recur, just like herpes on the penis or cold sores on the lip. The chances of getting hepatitis from drinking piss are really low, but exposing a microscopic cut could pass the hepatitis virus into the bloodstream. Cytomegalovirus (CMV) is also shed in the urine, sometimes for years after exposure. Both of these viruses frequently cause infection without disease; because of this, many people are unaware that they are infectious. While there is no vaccine for CMV, one does exist for hepatitis B. Both chlamydia and gonorrhea can show up in urine; drinking this creates heightened risk for throat infections. Gonorrhea in the throat mimics the symptoms of strep throat. Both gonorrhea and chlamydia can be hard to diagnose in the throat, especially since many doctors won't think of them unless a patient mentions having had risky oral sex.

When the top and bottom are both HIV+ it is important to be aware that there are a few fungi that can cause major infections which can be found in urine: histoplasmosis; blastomycosis; and coccidioides immitis (also known as Valley Fever). All three can be a major pain in the ass to get rid of. Information is not available as to whether or not immunosuppressed players can catch these fungi from piss play; better safe than sorry.

Conspicuous in its absence from this list is HIV. To my knowledge, the evidence on the presence of HIV in urine is inconclusive. There is no evidence of HIV ever being transmitted through urine. However, HIV likes to concentrate in the semen, and some HIV+ men with other sexually transmitted diseases can have HIV-infected white blood cells hanging around the urethra waiting to swim out in the next stream of urine. Is it possible to catch HIV from playing with urine? It's very unlikely. ■

Radical Sex Magic

by Ganymede

In my youth, I was taken to serve the gods. In serving them, I have become a tantric mystic, a shaman of ecstatic rites. My spirit breathes the sensation and pleasure of my body. For me, sexuality is an integral part of spirituality. The mind and body are not separate entities, but connected, all part of great tides of energy flowing in the universe. The greatest joys I know are merging and dancing with the universal mind through sexual ecstasy, the blissful blending of waking realities and netherworld dreams.

I was about twelve years old when I became fascinated by the manhood rites of the African natives, described in glorious, shocking detail by National Geographic magazine. The pictures I saw of naked, jet-black men, women, and boys — boys my own age — were more riveting than any pornography. When these boys "came of age" they were gathered together and an elder pierced their foreskins with a piece of sharpened obsidian. This primitive thrill blazed through my own innocent, carefully intellectual analysis of adolescence.

I fantasized about these naked natives and their piercing rites for quite some time. Finally, one day after school, when no one else was home, I took a needle from my mother's sewing kit, went into the bathroom, and closed the door. I held the needle under hot water for a few moments, pulled down my pants, and sat down on the toilet.

Now, all the boy natives I had seen in pictures had real foreskins. I knew mine wasn't real. I had been circumcised, and where my real foreskin should have been, I had uneven-colored tissue, folded up like curtains under the head of my beautiful, terribly mysterious cock. I had read the official statistics on uterine and penile cancers as scientific justification for circumcision. Yet I retained a feeling of violation, mutilation, and inferiority.

How I longed for a manhood ritual, one like the native boys had. I felt so alone in the universe, completely out of harmony within my society. I wanted to be part of a tribe, to be part of a surging mass of human emotion and drama. I wanted to be captured and surrounded by my tribal elders, forced down the inevitable path of manhood. I wanted to be carried safely toward the mysteries I could not yet fathom, to be assured that, like others who had traversed the unknown, I would survive.

I believe we are kin to the secret souls of so many cultures before ours. Our urge to pierce, tattoo, to express with our very body in such primitive ways, is deep in the genetic memories, constant and strong as the tides. It is like the urge to dance, the urge to sing. The chord it strikes resonates strongly for some of us, affecting our psyches, our spirits, and our libidos.

When the chord strikes for you, respond. Let it come out, give it your own expression. Create your own rituals. Do not stifle yourself out of fear of rejection, or because of the need to win approval. The inner spirit cannot be denied, deceived, or destroyed.

Excerpts from the essay "Sacred Passages and Radical Sex Magic" which appears in the anthology "Leatherfolk: Radical Sex, People, Politics, and Practice" edited by Mark Thompson and published by Alyson Publications, Inc., Boston.

Leathersex and Spirituality

By Joseph W. Bean

Personal ads of leathermen seeking partners, articles published in leather magazines, and conversations at leathersex parties all suggest that the past several years have been a boomtime for spiritual interests and practices in leathersex circles. Men are often seeking not just a flogging, but a ritual flogging, not just an SM scene, but a ritualized scene, meaning a scene more likely to involve spiritual experience. The magazines, obviously responding to and guiding the community they serve, are publishing pieces about transcendent experiences, the spiritual movement, and the meaning of leathersex in psychological and spiritual terms. Discussions that were once about how good a man felt after a particular scene are often conducted now in the vocabulary of spiritual practice which, only a decade ago, would have raised eyebrows in most leathersex circles.

It isn't that new kinds of inner experiences are occurring in the leathersex playroom. What has changed is a greater degree of freedom in the discussion of the experience. This, very likely, has to do with the relaxing of the Old Leather attitudes. It was considered inappropriate or foolish, perhaps even ridiculous, for bottoms to speak of enjoying the abuse they begged for as recently as the early 1970s. And any discussion involving the word "spirit" was unlikely in most circles.

Tops have always been pretty much at ease talking about their desires. With their very closest friends, tops have talked freely about technique, but the Old Leather attitude toward any discussion of inner experience — particularly in terms that suggest a spiritual connection — had traditionally been, "I have no idea what you're talking about."

Bottoms would talk to bottoms, and what they mainly talked about in the past was the tops they knew. One of the inhibiting factors of bottom to bottom conversations in Old Leather was the certainty that anything said to a bottom could be repeated to a top if demanded, meaning that even when no tops were present, a bottom was risking ridicule by tops for mentioning the unmentionable.

Throughout the 1970s there were numerous independent movements and individuals working out and exploring the spiritual possibilities in leathersex. Geoff Mains, author of the classic Urban Aborigines, was a very serious student of the spiritual implications of both submission and pain-bearing. Fakir Musafar (publisher of Body Play magazine and presenter of workshops all over the world) was actively pursuing the pain-related spiritual practices of traditional cultures, from the Native Americans to the Hindus of the Indian subcontinent. Purusha Larkin, the author of the infamous The Divine Androgyne, was narrowly but deeply focused on the self-realization and spiritual liberty he discovered in fisting and other such assplay. Also, small circles of leatherfolk were turning to Wicca (traditional, nature-power religions), to the resurgent religions of the Native Americans, to Caribbean religions involving Christianity but hardly relating to the mainstream of that faith, and in larger numbers to New Age spiritual practices, often personally, even eccentrically defined.

What everyone was attempting was much the same. They wanted a framework within which to understand, to communicate, and to facilitate the repetition of spiritual experiences they had (or had heard of) in leathersex. They wanted to validate their experience, and to be able to predict it or cause it to recur. Another major force involved here was the implication that experiences as intense as the ones people had with SM — usually completely unexpectedly — could be dangerous as well as transformative in a positive sense. So, as with so much in leathersex, safety became a motive for change.

Black Leather Wings, a network of men and women involved in leathersex and related to the Radical Faeries, emerged in the late 1980s as a social forum in which people could bring their various experiences and interests, their extremely divergent backgrounds and their hopes. At gatherings (sort of faerie versions of the bike run) and at in-town meetings, the "leather faeries," as Black Leather Wings folks are often known, have given at least a certain segment of the leathersex population a comfortable context, and accommodating intersection rather than a set of doctrines.

In recent years, presentations on the spiritual dimensions of leathersex have become very popular at NLA International's annual Living in Leather conferences, in the programs of major leather/SM organizations like GMSMA in New York, and on the schedules of businesses like San Francisco's QSM set up to provide leathersex education. The word is definitely out that, although some people continue to resist the possibility of spiritual experience in the leathersex arena, it is a genuine and acceptable interest shared by a growing segment of the community.

Excerpted from the book "Leathersex: A Guide for the Curious Outsider and the Serious Player," by Joseph W. Bean, published by Daedalus Publishing Co., San Francisco.

SM Sex and Beyond

Interview with Mark Thompson

Mark Thompson began his career in journalism at The Advocate in 1975 where he worked until 1994. Thompson's other work includes the acclaimed anthology "Gay Spirit: Myth and Meaning" (St. Martin's Press), "Leatherfolk: Radical Sex, People, Politics, and Practice" (Alyson Publications), and "Gay Soul: Finding the Heart of Gay Spirit and Nature" (Harper). He frequently lectures on the psycho-spiritual aspects of the gay male experience. Thompson lives in Los Angeles with his long-time partner, Episcopal priest and author Malcolm Boyd, and is currently working on a new book, "Gay Body" which examines being gay through Jungian-depth psychology. Thompson is also a founding member of Black Leather Wings, a tribal group which incorporates elements of radical sexuality and ecstatic ritual with alternative forms of spirituality.

Drummer: Would you say that leathersex or SM is inherently spiritual?

Thompson: I don't see leather/SM sexuality as necessarily being an end in itself. I mean, it can be just hot sexy fun, as we all know. But to me that's just the outer form of it. The inner content of the experience itself is deeply, radically spiritual. And for anyone to say it isn't, well I just don't understand those people. I even think a lot of the Old Guard leathermen knew that, but weren't saying it, perhaps for lack of appropriate language. Or maybe they didn't want to say it because it might, in some way, seem too religious. There is a difference, of course, between religion and spirituality.

Drummer: Can you be a bit more specific about how you see SM as spiritual?

Thompson: If you're part of a leather scene that really works, you know that it's a sacred experience. You're peeling back layers of ego and identity - the veil of illusion of what we think life is about or who we think we are. Through leathersex, we come to see ourselves in new ways. A leather experience is a real stripping down to zero, to the bone. And that's, of course, what any authentic spiritual experience is about. So I see leather sexuality as a shattering of our illusions and self-created realities. SM is a way of getting beyond these constructions to something deeper - rearranging the parts to come to some new understanding of the Self, which is spiritual growth.

I've always viewed the Top as a shaman. One of the basic premises of shamanism is the cycle of death and rebirth. In shamanic stories, the heroic traveller is often dismembered, taken apart before he is put back together again. Now, this is completely analogous to what happens in a good leather scene: you are taken apart, ritually dismembered, and then you're put back together again, but in a new way. You've faced the darkness and a hidden part of yourself has been made more aware. When you come back up and out of the experience, you're more whole - you're stronger, more aware of the games people play around you. That's why I think some leather people tend to be a bit ahead in the consciousness game. When I got into leather, two things happened in my life that really delighted me: my sense of humor improved, as did my political awareness.

Drummer: How did you become attracted to the Radical Faerie movement?

Thompson: I've always been a hybrid person. I don't think a lot of people in the leather scene necessarily understood my interest in the Radical Faerie scene. I was one of the first Faeries, in the sense that I attended the first conference for Radical Faeries in Arizona in 1979. Before then, I was very actively involved in other kinds of spiritual pursuits, such as Zen Buddhism.

Drummer: So you were entering the leather scene and the Radical Faerie scene simultaneously?

Thompson: Yes. It wasn't until around 1978 that I became really self-accepting about my SM interests. I went to the first Faerie gathering with a few pieces of leather in my bag. Purusha Larkin, the Divine Androgyne, was at the gathering and he presented a slide show. Here we all were at a gay ashram, a little oasis in the middle of a big desert, and there was this man giving a slide show about the cosmic consciousness possible through fist fucking and other forms of radical body play. I was fascinated because I'd already had some of these experiences and I knew what he was talking about.

Drummer: Were there other men at this first gathering who shared your interest in SM?

Thompson: There were a few other shamanically spiritual leather people there. But we didn't really talk about it because the Faerie scene was a bit more matrilineally focused. There were a lot of men running around in dresses. There's nothing more hot to me than a leatherman wearing a sarong, mixing masculine and feminine. But within the Faerie movement, there was much more of an exclusive focus on the Great Mother and the Goddess.

Drummer: How, then, did it come to be that a Leather Faerie movement was born?

Thompson: Throughout the '80's, the Radical Faerie movement continued to grow across the U.S. There have been dozens of gatherings. A lot of leathermen would go, but there would never be much leather activity. Finally, in 1988, at a Faerie gathering in Wolf Creek, Oregon, about a dozen of us formed a circle in the woods and had an SM play party! It was reported back to us the next morning, that a third of the camp was awake all night, wondering what the hell we were doing, another third was fuming in their tents, and the rest were beating off - they were so turned on. That was the beginning of the Leather Faerie movement. It happened that night in the redwood grove in Faerie land.

Drummer: Describe the early Leather Faerie movement.

Thompson: Well, the next year, we met at Rancho Cicada, a gay-owned retreat in the hills near Sacramento. There were about forty of us. Fakir Musafar had quickly become a part of what we were doing and he brought a great deal of what you might call "spiritual technology" with him. He brought all these wonderful, intense rituals, like the Ball Dance and the Sun Dance. Ganymede brought with him elements of Wiccan ritual and I continued to emphasize Jungian philosophy and more gay male centered approaches. Although women gradually came aboard, the movement did start out as a gay male experience.

Drummer: How, specifically, is the Leather Faerie movement different from the Radical Faerie movement?

Thompson: The Leather Faerie movement branched out of the Radical Faerie movement and we have adopted many things from the Radical Faeries, like the heart circle and use of a talisman. We retained some of the feyness, but it was quickly blended with SM practice. Another major difference is that gay men and leatherdykes have been mixing - not only our presence, but our sexualities. It's fascinating that we're playing together, but still maintaining our lesbian and gay identities. Over the years, we have also included non-gay people, you might say queer straight people. So what we are is spiritually oriented, kinky queer people of various genders and orientations. The bonds of leather are thicker than any identity construction. We view ourselves as a tribe.

Black Leather Wings (BLW) is centered in northern California and meets regularly. We have annual summer gatherings. Many of us are combining this with other things. The whole point of this is combining and synthesizing elements, ever creating a new whole, or a new totality. It's an ongoing organic process of individuation.

Drummer: I'd like to get back to the concept of masculinity within the leather, Radical Faerie, and Leather Faerie movements. It seems that it would be difficult to reconcile the images of the hard, stoic leatherman and the soft, feminine Faerie man.

Thompson: Well, that sense of masculine initiation was one of the things that attracted me to the leather scene. It provided a form of initiation into my masculinity that I never got from my dad or from society. In saying that, I don't mean to imply that it needs to be macho. There's a big difference between all that macho masculine stuff and masculinity. Just as there's a big difference between putting on leather and being into leather.

Drummer: Talk a bit more about that.

Thompson: A lot of men are out trying to mirror this sort of glum, stern, determined image of a leatherman, but that's ridiculous, because that isn't necessarily the real thing. And I don't believe it ever was.

One thing we've done in the Leather Faeries is to incorporate a real sense of play and humor, which is how I think the original leather clubs were - a bunch of men letting their inner boys go off into the woods and have a great time.

Drummer: Do you think the leather community, as a whole, is becoming more spiritually oriented?

Thompson: There's much more receptivity and willingness to discuss spiritual issues. It's been necessary for us to create our own language, our own system of values, references, and words. That's one invaluable contribution that the Leather Faerie movement is making to the community.

Drummer: What do you see as the next step for the leather community, as a whole?

Thompson: The leather community needs to talk about its collective spiritual life. It's good to talk about techniques and role playing and what's the proper way to fist someone, but there has to be more talk on a deeper level. I know there's a huge appetite for it. People want and need this level of discourse. Geoff Mains talks about this very well in Urban Aboriginals. The leather community has to come out of the closet around spirituality or we will have no lasting ground to stand on. Without a common language to talk about these elusive issues, people will remain stunted by shame, doubt, and shadow-ridden behavior. Pride in itself is not enough.

The Gay Pagans

by Jonathan Maedwand

The cane slices its way into my ass. I'm screaming, and I can't hear the drums for the pounding in my heart. Slowly the words of the chant filter through to my brain, punctuated by cane strokes. "Horned one, lover, son, leaper in the corn, deep in the mother, die and be reborn." I have a vision of my body in blue flames, with lightning traveling from the plug in my ass up to and exploding through the top of my head. I have been pagan for many years, but this is the first time I have used SM as a ritual tool.

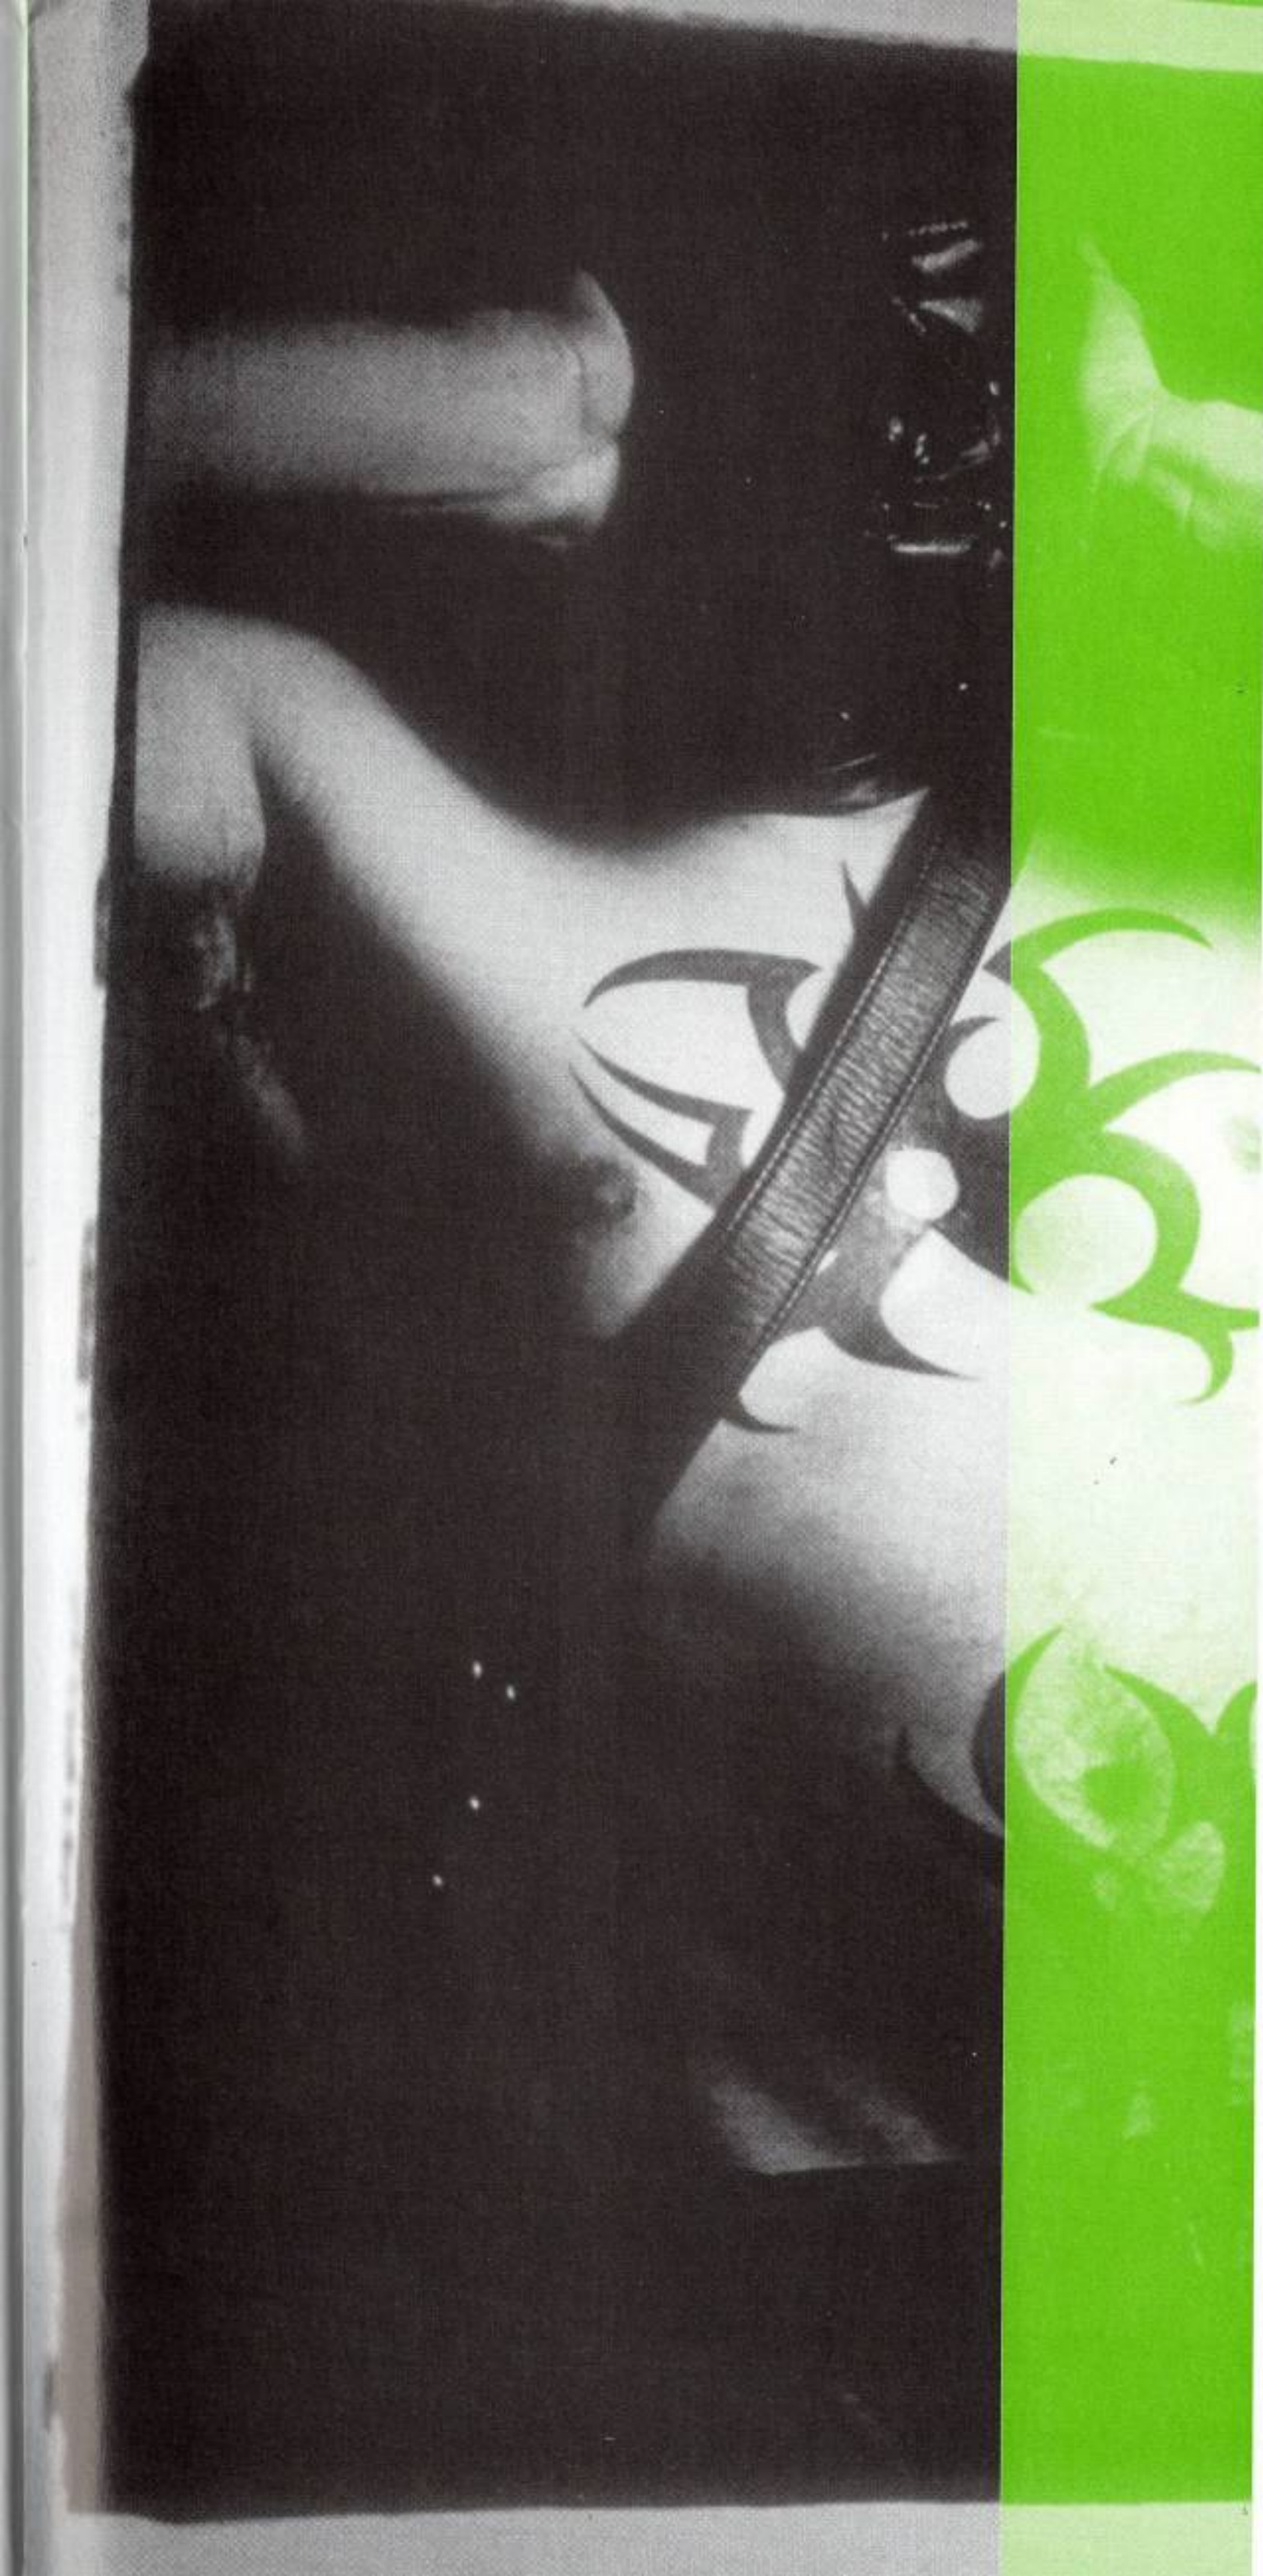

The basis of paganism is that all forms of life are sacred, and that all acts of pleasure and transformation are the rituals of the gods. Many pagan traditions around the world involve heavy body play and submission to a greater will as self-discipline, from the taipusam festivals in Malaysia and India to the British Gardinerian practice of scourging. What had for quite a while been very underground in the gay pagan communities is becoming more and more known and talked about at festival workshops, and in print.

There is an ethic in the pagan world of "do as thou wilt, and it harm none." Many pagans view SM as self harm or violence - and this topic has fueled heated discussions and on-going debates across the country.

It has been difficult for gay pagans to perform rituals in dungeons without running into ridicule and confusion, especially if any mention of a goddess is made. Granted, most men don't expect to hear Hindu or Celtic chanting in the back room. Yet over the past few years, more and more pagan leathermen have come out of the broom closet and found each other. There are now several sources through which gay pagans can find each other and share their knowledge and experiences.

The Crucible, one of the first and best magazines for pagan leathermen, has been published for several years now. Informative, and covering a multitude of traditions, The Crucible not only carries articles and really hot fiction, but working ritual suggestions and descriptions. The ritual described at the beginning was based on a ritual from this 'zine, where I became the cauldron for the energies of five glorious topmen.

From Canada is the newsletter "On Wings Of Leather," published by Northwind. Essays, fiction, poems, and pictures! On Wings Of Leather is also one of the few pansexual queer newsletters around.

For glossy pictures, stories from around the world, and intense personal experience accounts, Body Play and Modern Primitives Quarterly, published by Fakir Musafar are excellent. Musafar also just released "Body Play the Book: Volume One."

On the pagan front, there are two 'zines that are leather friendly; the Lavender Pagan Newsletter in California and the Queer Pagan Newsletter from New York. Both have published articles and stories about ritual SM, and both are committed to exploring gay magic and mythology.

There are few books out that deal specifically with leather and ritual, but what is out there is excellent. "Leatherfolk," edited by Mark Thompson, is an amazing collection of stories and accounts of journeys and transformations through leather ritual. Its a great read, even if you're not gay pagan.

There are several people who are currently offering services as SM shamans. Most of them seem to be in the San Francisco Bay area, although there have been several intriguing ads in The Crucible from around the country. Finding someone who can be both top and priest responsibly is no easy task, especially if you are working within a specific tradition. Some of the SM priests I know of also work with dykes, and there are a number of women leather shamans and circles.

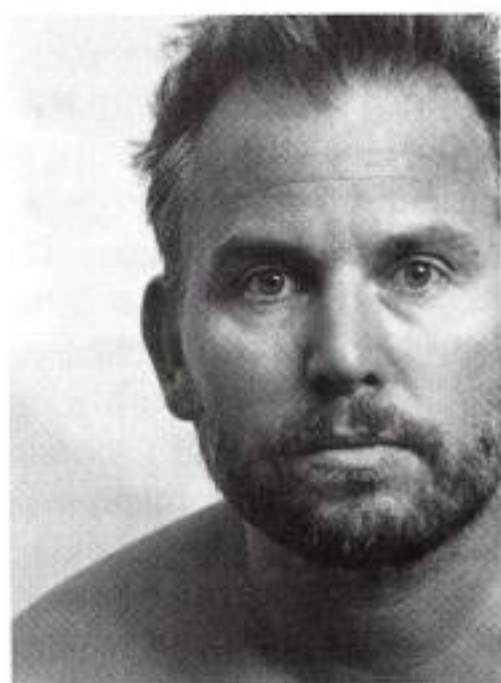

There are currently only two semi-public ritual SM groups that I know of, and both are members only. Black Leather Wings originally was an offshoot of the Radical Faeries, with open gatherings and rituals, but they have become a closed circle over the past couple of years. The Radical Faeries themselves, while not SM oriented, are dedicated to faggot spirituality, with spiritual sanctuary land all over the country. There is nothing quite like being beaten while tied to an ancient tree in the middle of the forest, I promise.

In New Orleans there is a cluster of chaos circles known as Zcluster. The TAZ circle of Zcluster is a coven of ritual SM chaos magicians and pagans, and seems to be the only contact available in the south.

Last month was the first ever all-gender Queer Spirit gathering in Northern California. There were amazing workshops on ritual SM and shadow play, and an intense ritual. Rumor also has it that there will be a Leather Faerie gathering in Oregon sometime next year put on by some of the same people from Queer Spirit.

I have a vision of leather pagans from all over the country gathering together to transform ourselves and the world. There is magic to be made in what we do. The old gods are alive and dancing with us. May the Horned One bless you all with strength and pleasure.

Blue Light

Excerpt from a story by Aaron Travis a.k.a. Steven Saylor

Illustration by Ken Wood

Michael stood beside my handcuffed body and looked in my eyes. He grabbed one of the hairless nipples between his finger and thumb and pulled downward until the captive body was forced to bend sharply at the waist.

"A slave's body, Bill. A big hunky stud in handcuffs. How shall we use him? We can do anything we want. Things you haven't dreamed of."

He took two tit clamps from the box on the floor. I groaned inside when I saw them. Alligator clamps with powerful springs, the ones I used only on my most advanced and jaded partners, and then only as a test or a punishment. Michael approached my body. It stood relaxed, unseeing, unsuspecting. He squeezed my pecs and kneaded my nipples, until I saw my stomach draw taut and my chest rise in silent offering, it across my shoulders.

My body jerked, spun, rolled away — staggered to its feet, tripped over my pants on the floor, rose desperately, ran blindly into a wall — turned and took a defensive stance, hiding its stinging shoulders against the wall. Tits clamped and cock hard. I couldn't understand that, the way my cock stayed so stiff the whole time.

Michael followed slowly. He looked at the crop. Looked at my chest, muscles in high relief, tense with pain. He touched the crop to my cock. My body flinched. Michael squeezed his hard-on. Then he raised the crop and slashed it backhanded across my stomach.

I saw my body double over and run, reeling with pain and confusion, trying to escape. Michael followed it patiently around the room, taking his time, Masochistic victim, and sadistic observer of my own humiliation, wanting more.

Michael played with the clamps — twisted, pulled the hard flat muscles into sharp peaks, watched my body twitch and heave. He pulled the clamps off, one at a time, and tossed them away. He caressed my body, watching the skin writhe when his fingertips brushed over the tender stripes.

He cocked his head and flashed me a cryptic smile. "Good slave body. Takes it well. Ready for whatever's next. Shall I fuck it?"

He rubbed his hard cock against mine. "Sure. Give him what he wants. But do it my way."

He hooked his finger through the dangling cock choker and pulled it taut. Tighter and tighter. The chain sank into the gathered flesh, my cock bulged until I

My body - the body he had handcuffed, beaten, clamped, emasculated, became more animal than human. A creature of dark magic. His creation.

Michael smiled. He placed one open clamp over my right nipple and let it snap shut.

Far away, I could feel the sharp teeth penetrate my flesh. I saw my body jerk wildly, tugging at the handcuffs, trying to retreat. But Michael slipped a finger into the chain dangling from my balls and held my body in check. He watched my chest spasm and writhe, touched his fingers to the knotted muscles in my arms and belly. Then he attached the second clamp.

My body twisted so violently the cock chain snapped from Michael's knuckle. I watched the body stumble to its knees, scramble up and stagger blindly into one of the mirrors, crazy with pain.

Michael picked up the riding crop and walked with long slow strides to the crouching, trembling body. He raised the leather high above his head and slashed stroking his thick white cock and wielding the crop. Like a hunter, exhausting his trapped game. Playing with me.

At last the pain-wracked body collapsed kneeling in the center of the room. Shoulders against the floor, heaving — ass thrust in the air.

Michael stood over the broken body. He slowly masturbated as he beat my ass with the crop, blow after blow, until the pale buns were red and blistered.

Michael discarded the crop, grabbed my body by the clamps and forced it to stand. In the reflections I could see every mark — the long red stripes across my shoulders, the back of my legs, my stomach. My cock — a slave's cock, rock hard after the beating, veins pulsing, dribbling from the tip. I suddenly knew why — the body craved it, but so did my head, watching, crazy with excitement at the spectacle. Two places at once.

thought the skin would burst. I knew what was about to happen, and my mind plummeted deeper into the numb stupor that was its only protection.

Michael licked his free hand. His saliva seemed to glow with blue light. He worked his wet fingers mysteriously around my cock and balls. I saw his lips move, as if he were whispering inaudibly. The thin chain flashed with blue flame.

Then the chain slipped through. He dropped it quickly and raised his hand to lift the genitals free. He held the nine-inch shaft by the testicles in his right hand. In its place there was a smooth hairless swelling of flesh between my legs.

Again I tried to scream, though I knew it was hopeless. "I said, don't twist your face up like that," he growled. He swung the disembodied cock and slapped me across the face with it. My eyes welled with tears, making the candle-lit room swim and sparkle.

My mind was sinking. I longed for unconsciousness. But his voice pulled me back.

"It'll stay hard," he said. He was rubbing thick lubricant over my cock. There was a dim sensation of pleasure somewhere below me. "All the energy of the spell holding you is focussed in your cock, like a powerful conductor. But I have a warning for you. When you come — when your cock ejaculates — you'll break the spell. You'll remain in whatever condition you're in at that instant. So unless you want to stay in three pieces, you'd better hold off." He smiled, and slid my cock through his fist. "Of course, you won't have much control."

He returned to my body and struck it with the cock, wielding it like a black-jack. The body jumped like a startled animal.

He dug the nails of his left hand into my right nipple and pulled the body, headless, sexless, up onto tiptoes. He stepped forward and rubbed his cockhead against the denuded stump where my cock had been. My body responded instantly — thighs parted, hips rocking back and forth. The body rubbed its groin against the blunt tip of Michael's cock.

He bent at the knees, lowering his cock and breaking the contact. My body followed blindly. The hairless groin sank down and searched for Michael's cock, found it, rubbed itself on the silky knob. Humping, like a bitch in heat.

Michael folded smoothly to his knees and settled his ass on his ankles, his hard cock pointing up like a missile. The handcuffed body spread its knees and squatted deeply, craving more contact.

Michael licked his middle finger and rubbed it against the sleek spot between my legs. My body squatted, swayed back and forth, barely kept its balance. Once again, I sensed what was about to happen. The unbelievable. The unthinkable.

There was no sign of an opening in the place where my genitals had been. Just a bald swelling, like the ball of a shoulder. But as I watched, Michael slowly, gradually buried his finger in the flesh. He began to slide it in and out. My body begged for more.

He turned his head and shot me a quick glance. His face was slack, lips parted, eyes flashing with triumph. As if to say: See what I can make you into? See how badly you want it?

As he finger-fucked me, he reached around with his right hand and began to push the disembodied cock — my cock — into my squatting ass. All nine inches, all the way to the balls in one steady shove. He pressed his palm over the crack to hold it in.

My hips squirmed on his finger, pushed back onto my cock. Michael removed the finger, and my groin tried to follow, ready to abandon the cock up its ass for more of his hand. Again, I could see no opening there.

But when he grabbed my tit to pull my body forward and down, his cockhead slipped inside. And my body squatted deeper, desperate for it, until Michael's thick shaft was completely swallowed.

Michael gasped and rolled his big shoulders with pleasure. Closed his eyes and hissed inaudible obscenities. Or incantations.

And my body — the body he had handcuffed, beaten, clamped — decapitated, emasculated — subjected to something unspeakable and inhuman — it rode his fat cock and screwed back onto the shaft he held up its ass. Mindless but hungry. More a whore than a slave. More animal than human. A creature of dark magic. His creation.

I was thankful that body had no head. It gave me a way to fool myself. To say that it wasn't me.

There was a sudden ghost sensation, more vivid than the others — a flash — as if I felt my cockhead rubbing against his, deep inside my bowels. It jolted me, like two charged wires touching. I felt feverish. The lights dimmed.

For a long time my consciousness came and went. My eyes would flicker open, glimpse grappling bodies, hear Michael's sex-charged groans. Scenes in the mirrors: Michael's beautiful ass, fucking wildly, my legs wrapped tight around his hips — Michael on his back on the bed, my body on its knees above him, fucking itself on his cock while he pulled on my tits — my body, shoulders on the bed, Michael standing between my drawn-back legs fucking with long strokes while he used my hard cock like a truncheon across my stomach and chest.

After a long blackness, I felt Michael slapping me awake. I opened my eyes and saw a cock before my face. But not Michael's cock. A bigger, coarser instrument, knotted with thick veins and streaked with rectal mucus. My throat filled with fresh saliva. I opened my mouth —

— then realized it was my cock held before me. I closed my mouth, recoiling from the insanity of it.

"Go ahead." I heard Michael's voice above me. "It's not as pretty as mine, but it'll give you what you need. Go ahead. What's wrong? Don't wanna taste shit? Come on, you've made plenty of guys suck it after you've screwed 'em. Besides, it's your shit, man."

I looked hard at the cock. I had seen it in mirrors of course, even in photographs. But now I saw it as my slaves had. Huge and pulsing, inches from my lips. And I knew why men had grovelled for it. Knew the power that made them crave it. I opened my mouth and moaned silently.

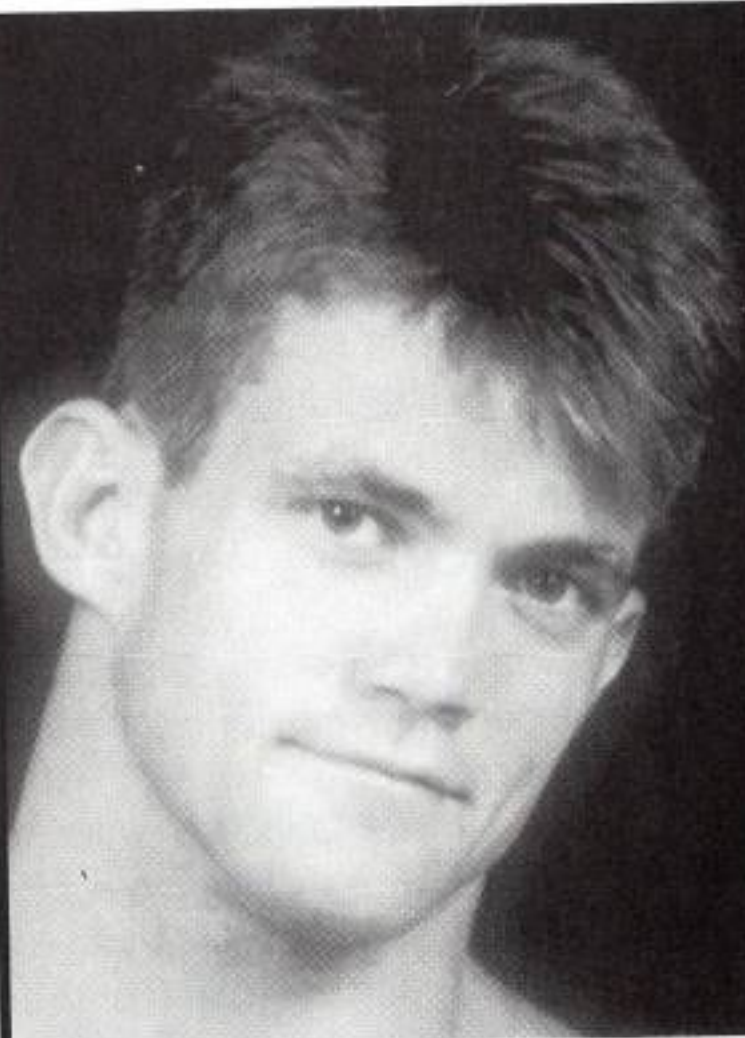

Michael laughed and shoved it down my throat. Rammed it in and out, the way I would have. I discovered how it felt — exactly how it felt. I remembered the trick in New York — the sweltering afternoon with the six-pack when I tied his face to my crotch and kept my cock down his throat for hours — coming, pissing, coming, pissing. Now I knew why four hours hadn't been enough for that cocksucker.

I felt pleasure in my cock as I sucked. Almost like sixty-nining, sucking and being sucked. Two places at once.

I squeezed my throat around the huge dick, milking it, savoring the pleasure I was giving and receiving. Then Michael spoke.

"Remember, Bill. When it shoots, the spell breaks. And if that happens while you're still in pieces — there's nothing I can do to put you together again." He kept sliding it in and out of my throat.

My blood froze. I stopped the undulations in my throat.

"Come on, Bill." His voice was low and evil. "Your cock's close. Been close for hours. The balls are way up in the sack. Come on," he teased, ramming it hard and fast, "make it come. Work your throat like a good cocksucker. Don't you wanna know how it feels when you shoot in some guy's mouth? Must be good — I bet they always come back for more. Don't you wanna taste your own come?"

I looked up at him and pleaded with my eyes. He kept sliding the big dong in and out — I felt it expand, the way I always do when I'm on the verge —

I clamped my teeth down on it, hard, to stop the stroking.

Michael laughed. "Okay. I believe you." He whipped the spit-streaked plunger from my throat and tossed it on the floor. I heard it land with a heavy thud, and felt ghost pain in my balls.

He picked up my head and carried it to the center of the room. My body was lying on its side on the floor, exhausted. Michael squatted, placed my head on my shoulders, wet his fingers with glowing blue saliva and stroked the connection. I felt warmth flow from my neck to my chest, my hips, my legs. Thank god, whole again — almost.

I spent a few minutes coughing and swallowing convulsively, clearing the juices that clogged my throat. Michael undid the handcuffs and pulled me to my feet. My legs were shaky, there was pain everywhere. But it was wonderful to feel anything beneath my neck.

Michael stretched and yawned. "Shit, I'm beat," he said. "Been fucking you for hours, baby." He pinched one of my nipples, making me throw my head back in pain. "Came in you twice while you were out. Once in your ass, and once — well, you saw. Think I'll take a shower and hop right in bed."

"But—" I looked at my cock on the floor and quickly looked away.

"Oh, yeah," Michael said. "That. Go ahead and take it. It's yours."

My chest knotted with horror. "Please," I whispered.

"What did you say? I couldn't hear you."

I lowered my eyes — caught a glimpse of the bare flesh between my thighs — shut my eyes tight.

"Oh please, Michael. Let me have it back. Oh please, for god's sake—"

I felt a heavy slap across my face and knew it wasn't his hand. His voice was deep and unctuous above me. "That's no way to beg."

I kept my eyes shut.

"Get on your knees and beg with your mouth."

I knelt and took his soft meat between my lips. My face was wet with tears.

"Make me come again, Bill. It won't be easy. Three times is usually my limit. Show me how good you are. Show me how good you suck cock. Make me come, and I'll let you have it back. That is — if you don't shoot first." I heard and felt the slick crackle of flesh on flesh above my head. He was holding my hard cock and stroking it.

I sucked, and tried to think of nothing but his cock. Slowly, slowly it hardened, until the beer bottle thickness gorged my throat. It wasn't so easy this time. I choked, gagged, felt my gorge rise — but I never let go. I forced my throat onto him over and over, strangling myself.

"Better than your cock, isn't it, Bill?"

Yes, he was right. His cock, so thick, so flawless, it was better.

He began to moan and twist. He was close. I was going to make it.

Then he pulled out. Held my face off, fought off his orgasm. "Not yet," he whispered, "not yet."

He tortured me that way. I brought him close over and over, sucking desperately, using every trick I could remember. Then he would pull out and make me start over, all the while working my cock.

"Think about it," he crooned. "What happens if I make you shoot first. You'll be what you are now, forever. Might not be so bad." He reached down and stroked a finger over my sexless groin. I felt an incredible flash of pleasure, unearthly. I jerked back and whimpered around his shaft.

"You'd be my slave, Bill. Really my slave. You've been playing that game for years, but this is real. I'd own you — or own your cock, which is the same thing. You'd be mine. You could never show yourself to another man like that. Think about it. Have to come crawling to me for sex. Maybe I'd be in the mood. Maybe not. And you've seen the kind of games I like to play."

With that nightmare in my head, I gave him my last ounce of energy. Worshipped him like the primal force he was. Sucked and sucked and sucked — — and finally heard his roar above me. Felt his meat stiffen and pump. Tasted bitter semen — and at the same instant, my own hips began to jerk. I was coming, in response to him. Too late —

I felt his hands on my crotch — blue fire —

And when it was over, I was whole again. Michael pulled his shaft from my throat with a pop and collapsed onto his throne, chest heaving. He looked worn out and happy. I was too drained even to hate him. Too exhausted to stand. He forced me to lick my come from the floor. Made me kiss his feet.

I looked up at him. After long minutes I caught my breath. The numbness seeped out of my head. Even as wrecked as I was, I had to know how.

"Michael, what you did — what you do...I don't know what it's called, I don't even know if it has a name...But what...what—"

"Something you're born with," he said. "There are others. I've met three in my lifetime, heard of more. We keep our distance from each other. Don't get ideas about learning it. I've studied, learned the ancient laws, found new ways to focus my power. But either you have it — and you know it — or you don't. I knew that you didn't when I first saw you. The tan is a giveaway. You like sunlight far too much. I can't teach it. I can only share it."

He pushed his big toe into my mouth. "So if you ever want it again, you know where to come. You'd be crazy to ask for it, though. I like danger. The possibilities — the games — are endless. Sooner or later..."

He pulled his toe from my mouth and pushed my face to the floor with his foot. "Now get out. I'm tired of you."

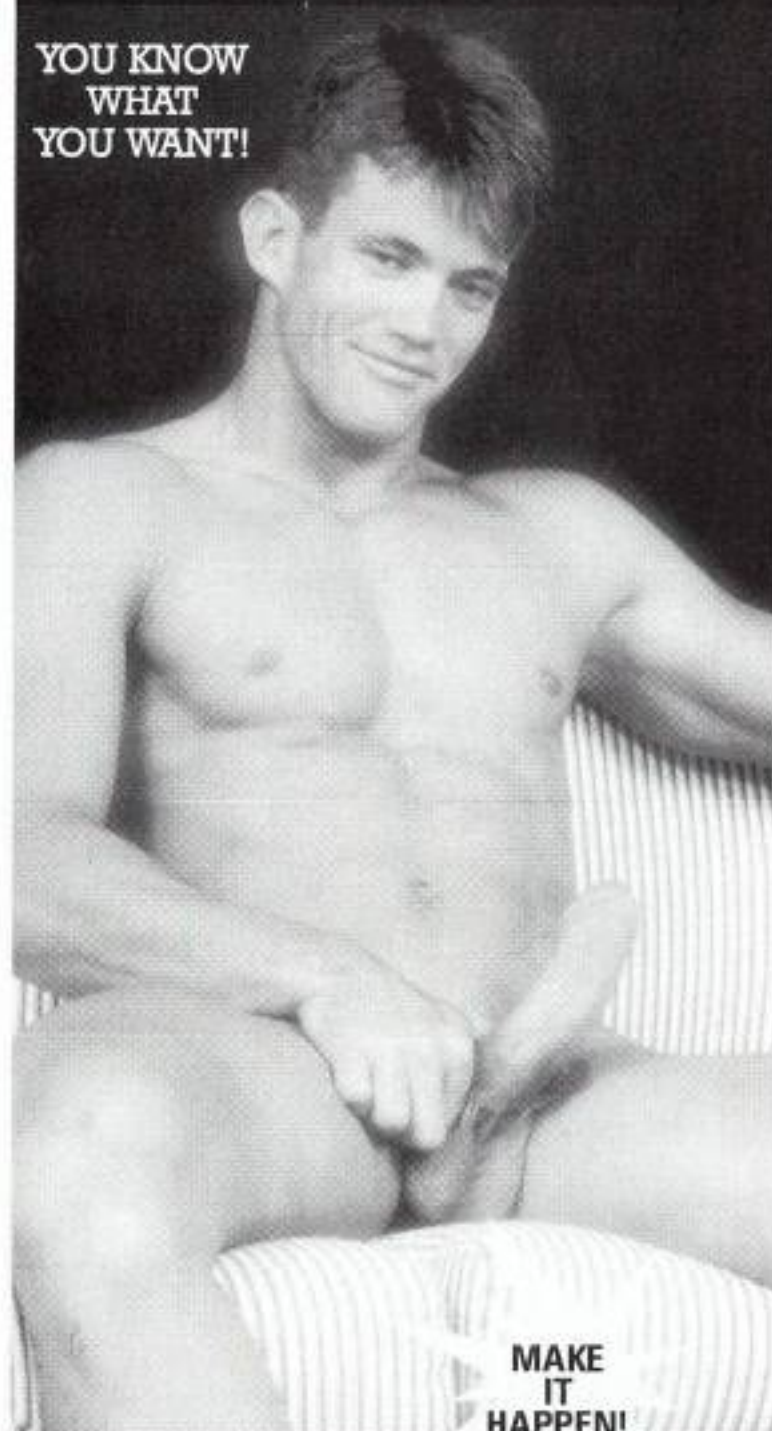

I staggered naked to my room. It was dark outside. I looked at the clock. I had spent eight hours in his room. I closed the door and crawled into bed. I saw the leather strap on my right arm. I wanted to put it back on my left, but I was afraid he would know somehow.

I heard Michael in the hallway, then in the shower. He was singing happily, basso profundo, as I dropped off to sleep.

"Blue Light," by Aaron Travis a.k.a. Steven Saylor was first published in Drummer #44 and went on to become a gay cult classic. "Blue Light" has since appeared in "Flesh and the Word" edited by John Preston, and "The Flesh Fables" a collection from BadBoy Books. ■

SM-DOS: Leather Cybersex

SAN FRANCISCO

The most popular meeting spot in the future for men into leather and SM may not be bars and playrooms but cyberspace. Despite threats of censorship, computer bulletin boards, the Internet and other online computer services already attract a significant number of gay men (and lesbians) into alternative sex. The number of services is growing daily, according to Race Bannon and Keith Sklower, who recently conducted a seminar for leathermen interested in getting hooked into cyberspace.

"In many ways, sex has driven the Internet up to this point," asserted Bannon, publisher of Daedalus Press. "The Internet has become a way for people with unconventional sexual tastes to meet. It's particularly popular with people who are reluctant to make their preferences known in public or who live in more isolated areas."

The number of fetish-related resources available online is surprisingly large. A compendium of resources prepared by Mistress Blanca and Peter (Green Way) lists several hundred chat lines, mailing lists, archives, bibliographies, news groups and publications related to various sex, gender and fetish topics. Many items on the list are broad categories that themselves contain numerous subgroups and subtopics. New leather or SM resources are being added at the rate of a dozen or so per month. Although the majority of listings are either straight or not gay-specific, Bannon and Sklower called the number of gay-male leather or SM listings "fairly sizable."

THE GOLDEN PENIS AWARD GOES TO . . . Winners of the Thrid Annual Gay Men's Erotic Safe Sex Video Contest were presented by the San Francisco AIDS Foundation and Frameline on September 28 & 29 at San Francisco's Castro Theatre. The winner of the High Tich Award for studio-edited entries went to: "Family Values" by Paolo Broggi and Hans Gelke. The Rough Cut Award for in-camera-edited videos went to "Get It Here Free" by Alex Jeavons and Michael LaCorte. A video tape of the three finalist in each category will be available later this year. Pictured below is a scene from "Sex Life" produced for the San Francisco AIDS Foundation by a team headed by Bill Weber.

According to Bannon, online networking is especially valuable for those who have neither the time nor the inclination to spend several hours per week, if not per night, in bars in an effort to connect with others who share an interest in leather and SM.

"It's convenient. We're in a very fast environment, and many of us just don't want to have to spend a lot of time in bars," he commented.

Sklower, who has worked for 20 years with UNIX, the operating system that drives the Internet, said online connecting offers particular advantages for those in the leather/SM scene who tend to be shy or reserved in public.

"It's easier to be bold online," he declared, acknowledging that he sometimes finds himself stammering in the presence of strangers. "I'm easily intimidated by other people. Online I get a chance to meet men I'd never talk to in person."

Many online connections, he added, resulted in satisfying in-person encounters - they did not remain computer-screen fantasies, a common worry among cyberspace critics who fear increasing use of the Internet will lead to loss of personal contact in our daily lives. "I've actually had more personal encounters as a result of using the Internet and bulletin boards than I did when I just went to bars," Sklower remarked.

He also pointed out that online connections allow you to meet people throughout the United States and the world. According to MentorNet, a San Francisco Internet training and consulting service, close to 90% of the countries in the world now offer an Internet connection.

"I've made a number of friends in very far-flung places. Even if we don't end up getting along, knowing them at least ties me into the local scene when I'm visiting somewhere," said Sklower.

Online services are particularly useful, Bannon noted, if you have strong fetishes.

"If you're into bears, for instance, there's an entire bulletin board devoted to bears. There's every kind of subgroup you can imagine," he said. "It sounds kind of cold, but I call it targeting your market. If you're going to go fishing, computer networking means you'll be fishing in the right pond."

Another advantage of online introductions, Bannon continued, is the relative ease of negotiating sensitive scenes. "You've got the wall of the phone line between you. It's easier to talk about things, clearly, online than it is in person," he declared. "You can be sure you're each making yourselves understood. Face to face, that's sometimes difficult."

A fear for many is the potential loss of security that comes with Internet use. Access by thieves to credit card or other financial information, danger of personal information falling into the hands of just anybody, and scrutiny by government, employers or other authorities are all concerns of Internet users, particularly those who practice "outlaw" sex. The two instructors acknowledged that these fears are not unfounded, but Sklower said he doubted the Internet could ever be effectively policed. "It's just too big and too amorphous, at least at this point," he maintained.

Dane Christensen of MentorNet, a San Francisco consulting firm, however, mentioned that the Internet is due for a major change within the next couple years. The National Science Foundation, under whose auspices the Internet now operates, has announced it plans to give up its coordinating role. Precisely who or what will take over is now under discussion. Candidates range from private telecommunications companies or a consortium of companies to various quasi-government or nonprofit enterprises. What restrictions they will, or can, impose on the system is unknown, according to Christensen.

In the meantime, Bannon and Sklower recommend online novices get started as soon as they can, for non-leather as well as leather-related purposes. They suggest starting out with one of the major commercial systems such as America On Line, CompuServe or Prodigy but advancing to a direct Internet server once you've got your feet wet and are comfortable with online computing.

"There's a lot more available than you'll find on these big services," said Sklower, adding that the major network services also maintain some, although not very high, level of censorship. But you won't find chat groups devoted to watersports, heavy SM or other highly controversial subjects, he noted. Or, if you do, it will be only after a prolonged and roundabout search. "[These services] all attempt to monitor their subscribers to some degree. There's a lot more freedom through direct providers," he pointed out. Direct servers also tend to be cheaper for anyone who goes online more than a few hours per month.

They also recommended investing in either a hands-on class on Internet skills or one of the many how-to books now available, both as an aid to learning how to navigate and as a reference for future problems. In addition to learning basic skills, they added, there is the need to learn proper "netiquette" so you don't get "flamed" (that is, deluged with hate e-mail) by other net users. For example, never type in all caps because it is considered yelling.

For personal connections, Bannon and Sklower recommended local computer bulletin boards rather than the Internet because they offer a more reliable and thorough source of local events and resource listings. They noted that while some bulletin boards can now be reached via the Internet, the cost to do so is usually higher and the service more limited than via direct connection. Many bulletin boards now offer connection to the wider Internet anyway.

"Bulletin boards provide more direct access to the local SM community," said Bannon. "They're a pretty good way to meet people nearby who share your interests. They're also good for discussions and learning about local resources."

In regard to the Internet, a good place to begin browsing (once you know how), according to a writer for Boston's Bay Windows newspaper, is the Queer Resource Directory. Begun in 1991 as an electronic file archive for Queer Nation, QRD is now considered the largest electronic source of gay-related information in the world, with more than 9,000 files at each of nine geographic sites. QRD is available on the World Wide Web at <http://www.qrd.org/>

QRD/. The resource can also be reached, without visuals, via the Internet.

Cyberspace Censorship Debate Continues

C U P E R T I N O

Worried about the possibility of government restrictions on Internet communications, a group of high-tech companies has formed a consortium to develop industry-wide standards for technology that allows parents to block children's access to specific types of online information. The consortium includes representatives of Microsoft, IBM, Apple Computer, Netscape Communications and the major online services.

The group's aim is to generate either software or hardware that effectively prevents children from viewing or downloading material that many parents deem offensive or inappropriate for young people. Many fear that without such programs, federal or state governments will impose censorship controls, backed by fines or imprisonment, denying everyone access to controversial information.

Earlier this year, the U.S. Senate passed a bill by James Exon, D-Nebraska, that would initiate controls. The chamber voted 84 to 16 in favor of a bill assigning heavy fines and prison terms to anyone convicted of distributing sexually explicit or other "filthy" material over publicly subscribed computer networks. The House of Representatives is currently considering adoption of its own version of the bill. Approval by both chambers would send the bill to the President to sign into law.

Patrick Leahy, D-Vermont, spearheaded opposition to the bill in the Senate, labeling the legislation a violation of the first amendment right to free speech. A surprising ally in the House is Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Georgia, who despite well-publicized antagonism to gay rights and sexual freedom, called attempts to regulate the Internet a waste of time. President Clinton has not revealed whether he would sign or veto a law restricting Internet communication.

At a series of midsummer Congressional hearings, an attorney for America Online said his company already provides subscribers with free software that lets parents block "indecent" material. He also said AOL has hired additional "cybercops" to kick pedophiles and others out of "public chat rooms." "We don't want their business," attorney William Burrington declared.

Although some access-blocking software already exists, most of it is effective only with specific online services such as AOL, Prodigy and CompuServe. More generalized programs are available, however. SurfWatch, for example, enables parents or educators to limit sexually explicit material by screening out text and visual images from more than 250 Internet newsgroups. It searches for specific key words such as bestiality, bondage, erotica, fetish, and sadomasochism.

Members of the new consortium said even more effective and efficient technology must be developed if Internet users and the computer industry hope to stave off government regulation.

While some critics of the federal legislation pointed out that efforts to censor cyberspace are almost doomed to failure because of the amorphous nature of online communication, others noted that local police in several states have already made arrests under municipal or state laws.

Esther Dyson, chair of the Electronic Frontier Foundation, an organization of high-tech users and manufacturers concerned with limiting government interference in cyberspace, said the issue comes down to a simple matter of letting people make their own choices.

"I would say people who don't like [pornography and other controversial topics] don't need to look at them," she told an interviewer for the San Francisco Chronicle. "And censorship is censorship. I am for giving those people a means to not only avoid that stuff, which is very easy, but to prevent their children from getting it even when the kids want to."

In addition, she continued, "Censorship doesn't get you anywhere. You can pass a law against that in the United States and they'll start shipping it in from Bermuda."

What's That Smell?

NEW YORK CITY

Although leather bars and venues are not known for their high tolerance of perfumes and cologne, some leathermen may be intrigued by a new fragrance set to hit the shelves this fall. Q, said creator Larry Lopata, is designed for men looking to attract other men. In an interview on Cable News Network, Lopata described the fragrance as "woody" and "spicy."

Premarketing tests, however, demonstrated that acceptance is not likely to be universal. And don't expect to conquer straight men with it. Some straight testers called Q

T/T's well-received first issue, circulation 1000 copies, was distributed free in San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, Firenze and Barcelona. Publishers say that issue 2, devoted enlarging your nipples with snake bite kits, has a circulation of 5,000 copies and distribution now includes Italy and Australia. Japanese Psychiatrists Declassify Homosexuality

TOKYO

Bowing to international pressure from gay groups and other psychiatric associations, the Japanese Society of Psychiatry and Neurology has removed homosexuality from its list of disorders, according to Occur, a Japanese gay rights organization. From now on, the Japanese society will adhere to the World Health Organization's psychiatric disease classification manual, which does not label homosexuality a disorder in need of treatment.

Leathermen Champion HIV Prevention

SAN DIEGO

Project Lifeguard, an HIV prevention program of AIDS Foundation San Diego, announced a new program targeting the city's gay leather community. Called "Leather for Life," the program builds on the popular and successful "Queens for Life" program, which targets San Diego's drag and transgender communities.

Helping to promote the program are current Mr. San Diego Leather Daniel Greene and three former titleholders, Taurus Webster, Jeff Barrett and Zak Topor, program coordinator for Project Lifeguard. Also assisting is Al Reese, first runner-up at International Mr. Leather 1995. ■

Fetish Lifestyles Come of Age

A thousand kinky scenes bloom!

BY SAM SANCHEZ

When gay men of a certain age talk about the good old days, they reminisce about a time when the leather and fetish scene was a secret society hidden from public view. Bars had no signs on their doors. You had to know so-and-so to get in. And, most importantly, you had to be dressed according to the strict macho code of the time. Sadomasochism, piercing, bondage, and other taboos were acted out in dungeons and basement beer joints, away from the scrutiny of disapproving eyes. In the good old days being queer meant keeping your fetish life covert.

HIV toppled that carefully constructed leather and fetish society of the good old days. Sexual practices were held up to the glare of sex-monitor flashlights and health-department inspections. As it turns out, the sexual lifestyle of the good old days was hazardous to everyone's health. This is not a moral judgement. It's just that today, HIV transforms every sexual contact into a balancing act and requires constant vigilance. For many younger gay men, the thrill of total sexual abandonment, fostered by the queer sex scene of the 70s and 80s, seems a tainted legacy.

Men who complain that today's gay fetish scene is different are right. It is different. Leather is only one of the many fetish trappings queers use to express the new and primitive sexuality of the 90s, one which is free from the role-playing and elitism of the past. The techniques born in the kinky sex play of the first leather men have evolved and blossomed into the thousands of perversions gay men enjoy.

In their search to make sex more exciting as well as safe, queers have actually become kinkier and in some cases, more spiritual. Piss, rubber, bondage, piercing, tattoos, and other practices are common but seem tame when compared to being flogged with shredded PVC pipe by a hundred chanting tribalists, or dancing with a cage of sharp spears on your chest and shoulders.

In the old days, certain articles of clothing were used to show what type of sex a gay man wanted. Today, many of the external trappings of the queer fetish scene have been assimilated into the mainstream. Black leather harnesses were featured recently in the collections of fashion designer Gianni Versace. Drag queen Ru Paul is spokesperson for a product distributed by cosmetics giant Estee Lauder. Cat Woman and Madonna undulate in rubber suits. And adolescent models in Calvin Klein blue jean ads sport pierced noses, nipples, and bellybuttons. Overexposed and sanitized by the masses, these fetish elements now seem meaningless to the men who once used them when cruising for sex.

Fetishism is influencing art and performance as well. In New York City, two art galleries are exhibiting drawings by tattoo artists, elevating the custom into a new-age folk art. Who would have thought tattoos, long considered the mark of sailors, freaks or those on the fringe of society, would one day be the subject of articles by art critics in the New York Times? Around the country, performance artists like Bob Flanagan, who is elaborately pierced, and Ron Athey, who is covered with tattoos, blaze a trail using their uniquely decorated physiques as living art. Others, like San Francisco's Keith Hennessey, use needles and blood in their performance pieces.

The scope and breadth of today's fetish scene points to a renaissance in gay sexuality. Despite the obstacles presented by HIV, gay men have created thousands of new and exciting ways to act out their fantasies. They have forged a new approach to sexual fulfillment. No, it isn't like the old days. But it sure is every bit as exciting.
